by Stitch&Tex

The textile and apparel industry represents 30 percent of industrial production in Egypt and 10 percent of total exports.

Demand on Egyptian home textile products is growing domestically at a pace of 25% annually due to the mega residential and commercial projects upsurge.

Egypt's Textile sector initiative is set to significantly expand the sector. The strategic objectives include creating one million jobs, training 750,000 employees, and increasing textile and garment exports to $10 billion per year.

Situated already as the "rising market-place" for textile industries; Egypt grasps the features of excellence to become the ultimate textiles commercial and investment hub all around the MENA region; offering all the essential components, including outstanding geographical location, superior raw materials, low wages, first-class transportation infrastructure and low energy costs.

Egypt's textile strategy aims to achieve a significant leap in the production capacity with a target production of 188 thousand tons of yarn yearly compared to the current figure of 37 thousand tons and 198 million meters of fabric instead of 50 million meters for the time being.

The growth of Egypt's home textiles export is estimated at 15% (CAGR) for the upcoming 5 years at least; with upholstery, linens, curtains and carpets representing the most promising sub-sectors.

Known as the "white gold" for its unique characteristics; Egyptian cotton kept the position of the finest natural fibers in the world for its unmatched strength. Egypt produces about 150,000 hectares of cotton fiber yearly, while cotton yarn exports equals to $400 Million.
